PREPAREDNESS

FITHE Hongkong Authorities , are to be commended for their vigorous prosecution of triad societies in recent and for demonstrating that this year they will not be caught unprepared in the event of a repetition of last October's riots. The lessons are best conveyed by the kind of exercise that took place Like throughout the Colony today. Demonstrations such as those in the Police compound in Kowleon, while perhaps beneficial to the Force, lack real impact on the public.

What the people need to see those forces-police military-which will be called out in the event of an emergency together with the arms and equipment they will be using. Much is to be gained by a study of last year's events and one of the most obvious conclusions relevant to any other emergency of the same kind that might occur. the best equivalent we can close lalson with the Police.

RESUMES TRADING CHINA

Devoid Of Political Slogans

Peking, Sept. 25. China foreign trade is resuming its activities: this is the impression gathered in Peking among various trade delegations and businessmen from all countries at present engaged in economic and trade discussions with different China foreign trade officials.

Surprised

They arrived in Peking with the impression that economic difficulties had led China to slow down the tempo of their imports of foreign goods. The visitors have been pleasantly surprised to find that China seemed to have resumed its policy of foreign trade expansion but, however, on totally different basis than in previous years.

There are at present in Peking and in China four trade delegations, German, Japanese, French and Moroccan. Leading trade circles of Tunisia and Italy are also represented, together with Swiss exporters. A round-up of these delegations' general impressions leads to certain number of common observations which are interesting clues of what may become China's foreign trade policy in the coming years.

Observations

First of these observaknowledge of foreign markets' conditions and techniques acquired these last three years by Chinese officials, who have become remarkable debaters and skilled negotiators.

The second observation is the complete disappearance of political aspects which for the past three years have dominated some of the agreements reached through long and protracted negotiations, sandwiched with slogans of peace and coexistence.

that although it is still | the Governor. kept a secret, the Chinese Government has drawn up the general principles on which it is going to build its economic policy for 1958 and perhaps for 1959. Foreign trade officials appear to know their possibilities and the targets to be soldeved through present negoliations.

Premature

answer as to what are these targets, but one thing is certain. China foreign trade officials have received detailed instructions to get great financial independence, mostly to achieved through the creation of open accounts inside financial agreements.

Such a system will open the door to short term credit facilities to which Chinese officials do not seem any more hostile. Finally it helps to solve some difficult problems raised by the excess of Chinese exports over imports with some leading European countries .--France-Presse.

CONFLICT

She says herself: "Perhaps from my point of view it is a good thing I was a failure as St Joan or I might be even more Sometimes he is not aware of impossible than I am."

To some people she is quite impossible enough as it is: to them, her self-assurance is merely cockiness; her poise is just evidence of a basic con-ceitedness. But all these judgments are unfair: they fall to take into account the confusion of a girl who does not know whether to behave like a star or like a nonentity for the simple reason that she does not yet know whether she is a star or a nonentity.

BATTLE OF BRITAIN BY CHINESE TEAM

7-2 Victory Over The Combined Services

By I. M., MacTAVISH

The magnificent new "Battle of Britain Cup" passed into the hands of the Combined Chinese when they overwhelmed the Combined Services by 7 goals to 2 at the Club Stadium last night. The final issue was never really in any doubt, yet the Services forwards had some excellent chances to put a better complexion on the scoresheet, but bad finishing spoiled some imaginative leading up work.

After a defeat like this it would be easy, but grossly unfair, to slam the unindoctrinated Services side. They went into this Charity game in aid of the Royal Air Force Benevolent Fund with all the cards stack ed against them, but whatever deficiencies there might have been in their ability and in their team work there can certainly be little criticism of their willingness to dive in at the deep end of Hongkong football.

HAVE MORE IDEAS LIKE THIS!

CUP WON

Says Stanley Matthews

Manchester City's Scots boss, Leslie Mc-Dowall, is a manager with imagination. He thought up the now famous Revie plan which revolutionised City and took them to two Wembley finals in successive years.

Now he has hit the football world with a new idea - a strength-through-defence plan. He posts his inside left with a rouing commission behind the centre half. The job is to bolster up the defence, and at the same time keep pushing the ball through to the attack.

It was an unqualified success when tried in mid-week. It may turn Manchester City into a title-chasing machine team. It may fall down with a crash. But whatever the result, we can only admire Les McDowall for bringing a new slant to the game.

That is what we want...more ideas...new crowd-pulling attractions . . . something to lift football out of the humdrum.

Remember the Revie Plan? Everyone wanted to see how it worked . . . almost everybody in football talked about it. And the crowds went to see it operate. If this stunt works, you can bet they will rush to watch it.

AN OLD IDEA

But I do wish some enterprising manager would give another run to an old idea - the attacking centre half.

The third-back pivots have ruined football. With them kick-and-rush football came in and the old brilliant attacking moves went out.

Nowadays ball-playing inside forwards are unable to do their jobs properly because they meet too many opponents. Defensive attacks are the cardinal rule, and attacks are, more or less, sporadic:

Can you wonder the man on the terrace grumbles at the poor standard of the game?

Some teams are now developing the attacking game again. Manchester United go out on the attack from the first whistle. They never let up. Every player from the goalkeeper sets out to keep the attacking moves going. The result? Look at their League position.

Everton, perhaps the fittest team in the League at the moment, are another all-out attacking side. They are also reaping their reward.

So let the other clubs drop the third-back centre half. Let him do his normal job of defence and attack, let him go through with the ball like the old stars did.

We'll not be sorry, and the crowds will see a brand of football that's thrilling and worth watch-

It will also encourage the return of the ballplaying inside forward. Young players will be able to develop their own natural ability.

Seven Lean Years i In South Africa

Johannesburg, Sept. 24. After the coming Australian tour, South African is unlikely to have another visiting international cricket side for seven years, sald a statement issued today by the South African Cricket Association.

South Africa is restricted to playing only England, New Zealand and Australia in cricket matches because of the country's colour policy .

The statement said that a letter was received from the MCC regretting that it had been found impossible to arrange a tour of South Africa earller than 1064-65.

The MCC expressed the hope that after 1964-65 South Africa would have a more favourable cycle of tours.

The South African Cricket Association decided to investigate the possibility of extending to the rest of South Africa the MCC conching scheme which has been adopted by Transvaal and Rhodesia.

Known as the MCC Youth Coaching Scheme, it will involve the importation of two or more coaches to run schools for coaches.-China Mail Special.

Eliminate Team Sports

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 24.

The International Olympic Congress here rejected proposals today to eliminate team sports from the Olympic programme and added a new one, volleyball,

The IOC voted in principle to reduce the size of the Olympic programme, but at the same time they made it possible for a greater number of sports to be contested.

An Executive Committee proposal to streamline the Games was amended so that beginning in 1964 there must be a minimum of 15 sports, with a possible maximum of 21.

Commenting on what appeared to be a paradoxical decision, Mr Avery Brundage, American President of the IOC, said: "The IOC have reserved for themselves the right to eliminate any sport orevent if in its opinion it has not sufficient international interest or if it is not being properly conducted."

by ALAN HOBY

Amenal days, Derek Ibbotson will be there . . . Joe Davis, Peter Waterman, Hogan Bassey, and Scoble Breasley.

And the cricketers? Peter May, Sir Len Hutton, Walter Robins, Colin Cowdrey, Bill Edrich, Jim Laker, Trevor Balley, Alec Bedser, Godfrey Evans, Peter Richardson-what, I wonder, will they be thinking about on this evening memories?

Of the way Denis pulled in the crowds and shattered records like a batsman gone berserk?

Of the nonchalant manner he. hooked bouncers off his eyebrows—a trick Patsy Hendren taught him? Or how once, in South Africa, he rattled up 300 do, the imperturbable, off-beat out of 399 in three hours—a fantastic feat by any yardstick? I doubt it.

EXASPERATING

In fact, I'll wager that Hutton, May, Robins and Co. will be thinking of these things at

Rather will they recall, with offection and not a little exasperation, a certain punctual fellow who not only turned up late for practically everything but once, when departing for Australia, was still rummaging through his cricket "clobber" at Lord's 30 minutes happy all-rounder whose bat, wielded like a rapier, gave birth to such cliches as "The trophies he won in 1947-48 and Gay Cavaller," "The Eternal a handsome "pot" from the Schoolboy," and "Cricket's Cricket Board of Control-"to Golden Boy"? the Ashes" in 1953. Perhaps. . . . Or will they remember, as be churning through his mind when finally he rises to the toast of the guest of honour?

I believe that he will be as nervous as that first time he knocked on the door at Lord's. For, unless I have misjudged my man, racing through Denis';

the thought:--"Phew . . . I'd far rather of paradise and as unique as play in the Cup Final at Wembley or face the combined pace of Lindwall and Miller than have to follow such brilliant afterdinner speakers as Sir Norman Birkett, Robert Morley, and Gilbert Harding!" . I am sure, however, that when he faces his distinguished audlence Denis Compton will rise to the occasion—as he has so often done in the past. . . . For he would be the first to admit that despite much pain and the loss of a kneecap, life has been good to Denis

But the prize Denis values 1947 when he smashed the Hobbs and Hayward records by scoring 3,616 runs and 18 centurles in one season—a run glut that may never be equalled.

Sterling Suffers Overstrain As World Currency

By SYDNEY S. CAMPELL

London, Sept. 24. Probably the most important result of Britain's dramatic anti-inflationary measures will eventually be to enable her to come into court with clean hands.

The major factors which are wrecking the international financial order-which is so largely based on sterling—have very little to do with Britain's internal economy or her balance of payments.

There are the D-Mark gap and the Dollar gap and the overstrain on sterling as the world trading currency, which is not treated as a world reserve currency.

Internal Investment

Constricting internal investment, which was already too small, is almost irrelevant to these terrible problems. The most one can say is that a firm home base should make it easier to tackle them. But while Britain was surrendering to the inflationary conspiracy, the true problem has been masked.

With Britain having a crisis Bank Rate of seven per cent, the German authorities can no longer assert that the weakest currencies have the lowest rates.

The British Government has made a three-pronged attack on the base of the inflationary conspiracy. The prongs are the ceiling on the capital expenditure of the public authorities (including the nationalised industries), the ceiling on bank advances and the higher Bank Rate.

Wage Inflation

Wage inflation is scotched because employers will simply not have the money to pay inflated wage claims. The nationalised industries will have to cut their coat according to the national cloth—a complete innovation—because they will not have the moneye with sell spot sterling. which to do anything less.

Both the public spending and the volume of bank advances are to be held stable in money, which means that they are to be doubly or trebly cut in real terms. They are not to be allowed to expand in line with natural expansion of the economy, let alone with price inflation.

As some further price rises are already in the pipeline, the spending and the bank advances will be generating less demand and employment even if the generation of inflationary pressure ceases forthwith.

Prices Go Higher

If wage inflation puts prices higher again, then the cost in real demand will be much bigger. At any given rise in costs and prices, the fixed sums of money buy that much less work. Four-year spending programmes would have to become five-year programmes, and so on.

This does not mean that the Government is deliberately creating unemployment. Management and labour ed all round,-Reuter. can have whichever they choose. If they cut costs, the fixed sums of money will pay for more work, not less.—China Mail Special.

NYLON USE EXPECTED TO INCREASE

New York, Sept. 24. use of high-strength nylon plastics in the manufacture of American automobiles will increase ten fold to more than 50 million pounds a year. This was forecast by Dr C. disappointingly slow situation Mienes, consultant and European representative of Foster Grant Company Incorporated, producer of chemical and plastic materials.

> Not only will nylon continue to replace metals in various 80 Industrial applications, he said, but it will continue to grow even in the face of newer plastice which are still in the research and pllot plant stages. As much as ten pounds of nylon material will be used percar in 1962, outside of tyre applications, he said. At present, less than one pound is per car.—China Mail Special
